One of the fastest growing occupations today is medical transcription. Medical transcription combines knowledge of the medical field and medical terminology with fast typing skills and usually a desire to work from home. Home based medical transcription work allows people who need to earn income a way to follow their own schedule while also cutting down on commute time and stress of having a manager all together.

A work at home medical transcriptionist also enjoys the freedom of being their own boss, to an extent. As long as the work is completed and accurate, there is little to no management expectations that you will have to deal with when you work from home. Working from home can also greatly increase your ability to get things done around the house and to be there for your children if you have them, while not having to give up an income and a career. Even if you are on your own and do not have family expectations, medical transcription is a great choice for you if you are finding the drive to work every day is costing more than it's worth and that your schedule is being compromised by having a regular 9-5, Monday through Friday job.

One of the downfalls of having to work from home as an MT is that you have to be organized enough to have a quiet workspace away from distractions and focused enough to get the necessary work done without finding other things you would rather do. You will have greater flexibility with when you choose to complete your work, but you will still be expected to complete it in a timely and accurate fashion. If you feel you will be too distracted at home, it may be in your best interest to consider working directly for an MT company or medical professional in their office. Either way, you will be gaining a set of knowledge you can always use to work from home at a later time when you are ready.

Medical transcription is a wonderful and versatile profession that will allow you to work in any setting that is good for you! By being able to select whether or not to work in an office setting or work from home, it allows you the freedom to control your own schedule. There are not many professions out there that can boast this fact. For more information, visit <http://www.futuremt.com>.
