Gratnell's storage units are perfect for almost any shelving problem. They are widely used in classrooms, hospitals and experimental laboratories, so they can stand up to heavy daily use and make the ideal storage solution for any workplace or home. Gratnell's storage units are completely modular and adjustable, meaning that are very versatile and flexible when it comes to what purposes they can be used for. One of the other much loved features of these storage units is that a lot of models come with castors so if you want you can move them around easily.

Gratnell's storage units tend to have a metal frame structure but the actual trays in the unit are made from top quality plastic so they will last for ages and can stand up to heavy- duty use. The plastic trays make the whole unit much lighter for transportation and also mean that the trays can be moved around a repositioned in the blink of an eye. It is because of their amazing functionality that they are used in many industrial areas and also in the home environment. They can be used to store almost anything under the sun.

If you don't like assembling furniture then Gratnell's storage units are going to be ideal for you. The units are very easy to put up and it doesn't take hours, they will be standing in minutes. All you have to do is click the parts together and this will form a strong frame. Don't worry though if you don't have the spare time to piece the unit together then most companies on the internet will deliver it assembled already, just ask them before you purchase.

Many people find they use Gratnell's storage units again and again because they come in a rainbow of colours so you can match them to the other storage you have already and the interior of the space you plan on putting them. If like a lot of of people today, you are concerned about environmental issues, then make sure to buy your Gratnell's storage unit from a website that stocks recyclable units. Although they are more expensive they are a lot kinder to the environment. If you are part of a school or public institution then think about going for the recyclable option as it sends out a positive message about preventing global warming and damage to the Earth.

When you are on the internet looking for your Gratnell's shelving unit keep an eye out for the bulk purchase discounts a lot of retailers offer. Many of these money saving offers are meant for schools and colleges but the are also other separate discounts available to the individual customer. Much of the time the special discounts offered by websites will include savings on workbenches, lockers or boxes, as well as other storage units so think about really taking advantage of these promotions to get you ideal storage system. Also because Gratnell's storage units are affordable even without the discounts it means that it is cheap to re-furbish a whole area and get it organised and clutter free.
