Content:

Scorpio â€™ master and slave in one. An irresistible being.

I desire, spoke Scorpio

parting lips of two bloody leeches

Scorpio is the mysterious the unspeakable the haunted mind. It is autoerotism in a scarlet sheet of pure silk. Write with the pen of Scorpio and you unhinge your own crypt. Enter death. A dual with mortality. One last shocking breath. Arctic waters flush your arteries. Behold. Knowledge. You did not die.

Rather I burst from rapture

Than be reserved in love

Let my droplets fall on the souls of those

Whose name I never knew

Conjuring their orgasms, trilling to their suckling pleas

The pen of Scorpio leaks horror, mystery and venom from a stirred imagination. It crafts the steely, erotic Sherlock Holmes. It flows with the ancient haunted house on the wild ocean cliff where the compelling Vincent Price stands nonchalantly in his silk smoking jacket, befriended by a raven and holding a goblet of garnet wine which alludes to fresh blood. The pen thrills us with moonlight murders, gum-chewing detectives, and Frankenstein creatures that howl from their primeval brains. We are aroused by Dracula, terrified by the hunchback, and cohorts with Boris Karloff and Bella Lugosi. Lastly, the drifting music of Laura melts us into the portrait of a murdered beauty. We are infatuated.
