No human civilization runs perfectly, that is not to say one couldn't, as it is possible. Surely the United States runs better than most civilizations on the Planet in this present period, but with its top heavy Government it is not the epitome of efficiency by any means. As a matter of fact almost every problem in our modern society can be traced back to the inefficiencies of our humongous and ineffective bureaucracy.

Whether you are a lover of the mess of government bureaucracy or not, or even if you work in it, can you name any thing that government does well? Well, don't feel like you have failed to guess the answer to the question it is a trick question, because there is nothing that our government is exceptional at, besides wasting our money. Does this mean we should shut our government down? Of course not it is a necessity of 300 million people living together in harmony.

Unfortunately government has only a few responsibilities, one of their most important responsibilities is to protect her people, well we know they cannot do that. Look at our leaking borders, the 9-11 attack or even the response to major disasters. The fact is that the government is inefficient in every single thing they do, including those agencies, which monitor other agencies they themselves are wasting money.

Since the government is so inept and the corporations make them look so bad, they keep increasing regulation, yet conveniently forget that they are inherently corrupt and wasteful with the most important job of all, working for us. It is our government and therefore the inefficiencies are our fault. Yet when was the last time you stood up and said anything about it? You see it is You that is causing all this, because you are not facing the reality of the blob of bureaucracy and you have accepted it as business as usual. You know what? It is not okay. Think on that.
